

Alison Mawhinney

Alison Mawhinney presently is a Reader in Law at Bangor University, Wales. Her research interests include freedom of religion in schools and religious discrimination in employment. Mawhinney's publications include Freedom of Religion and Schools: the Case of Ireland (Saarbrücken, 2009); "Ensuring others behave responsibly: Giddens, governance and international human rights law," co-authored with Iorwerth Griffiths in Social and Legal Studies (2011); "A discriminating education system: religious admission policies in Irish schools and international human rights law," International Journal of Children's Rights (2012); "Opting out or opting in? Conscience clauses and minorities," co-authored with Ulrike Niens, Norman Richardson, and Yuko Chiba in British Journal of Religious Education (2012), and "Acculturation and religion in schools: the views of young people from minority belief backgrounds," co-authored with Ulrike Niens, Norman Richardson, and Yoko Chiba in British Educational Research Journal (2013).