

Sonia Sikka

Sonia Sikka is Professor of Philosophy at the University of Ottawa. Her primary areas of research are social and political philosophy, philosophy of religion and continental philosophy. In addition to works on Heidegger, Levinas and Nietzsche, she has written on aspects of Johann Gottfried Herder's thought in light of contemporary debates regarding race, identity, relativism and multiculturalism. Her current research focuses on religious identity in the context of political secularism. Recent publications include: "Religion Education in a Multicultural Society" (in Multiculturalism and Religious Identity: Canada and India, ed. Sonia Sikka & Lori Beaman, in press, McGill-Queen's); "Moral Relativism and the Concept of Culture" (Theoria, 2012); "The Perils of Indian Secularism" (Constellations, 2012); "Untouchable Cultures: Memory, Power and the Construction of Dalit Selfhood" (Identities, 2012); Herder on Humanity and Cultural Difference (Cambridge University Press, 2011); and "Liberalism, Multiculturalism and the Case for Public Religion" (Politics and Religion, 2010).